DETROIT — Michigan's long history of mankind dates back to 11,000 B. General William Hull, the only officer in American History to be sentenced to death for military incompetence, claimed that he saw the Red Dwarf grinning at him in 1813 when he surrendered Detroit to the British army.

The Red Dwarf of Detroit or the Nain Rouge

Author: New York Public Library. The abandoned village was leveled when I-96 and Kensington Metropark were built in the 1950s. Initially founded as a competing port town to Chicago and Milwaukee, the town grew and became the home of Michigan's first school.

Operation LeGend Expanded to Cleveland, Detroit, and Milwaukee

Cadillac's colony was prosperous, but all was not well. Tenney has a different agenda when he attends the Marche Du Nain Rouge. It's a uniquely Detroit event, one that says a lot about where the city has been, and where it might possibly be heading.

French Heritage: Legends of le Detroit

And by responsibly, we mean from the safety of the Internet. Recent parades have drawn an estimated 5,000 revelers each year.
