Diversity Toolkit: A Guide to Discussing Identity, Power and Privilege

Definition Everyone has a personal and social identity. And perhaps the most important audience is our children. Inately, we are all rooting for ourselves.

The Power of Purpose

Everyone should quietly notice who stepped across the line and who did not.

Diversity Toolkit: A Guide to Discussing Identity, Power and Privilege

Furthermore, even young children are aware of the fact that most of what is expected of them in school can better be done by computers, recording machines, cameras, and so on. Closing Completing this training is not the end, but merely the beginning. HIPPY Americorps Evaluation: Parental involvement in literacy activities and volunteer activities in the community in California, Florida and Hawaii.

The Power of Purpose

Schools are upside down: Students should be teaching and faculty learning. Did anyone break a stereotype for you? Our drive is to get it right because our children have their eyes fixed on us. Training of this kind can provide historical context about the politics of identity and the dynamics of power and privilege or help build greater self-awareness.

'The Objective of Education Is Learning, Not Teaching'

Researchers tell us doodlers are most likely trying to make abstract concepts concrete with images, or they might be processing the information they are being given, filling in the gaps of their understanding.

Diversity Toolkit: A Guide to Discussing Identity, Power and Privilege

The same process occurs over and over again in the world at large; this is why it is so important to keep communities multi-aged, and why it is so destructive to learning, and to the development of culture in general, to segregate certain ages children, old people from others. Any you wish had been asked? Everyone will have a chance to share and be heard by the group.
