Albert Einstein: Religion and Science

An unnatural behavior has the connotation of error, it is something wrong and inappropriate, that is never found in the simple processes of the inanimate world, but that can be due -in the case of a person- to a free decision. No cultural or personal conditionings or preferences will change the outcome of an experiment: human psychology has no influence outside the human person when we study the physical world. Besides keeping a lot of theologians off welfare and out of trouble, it brings clarification.

Human Significance in Theology and the Natural Sciences: An Ecumenical Perspective with Reference to Pannenberg, Rahner, and Zizioulas by Christopher L. Fisher, Paperback

I would not want to generalize, nor do I mean to say that someone who believes in God is completely irrational.

What is Theology?

Although he posited no real theory of the hypothetical best regime for the ideal community, he favored a mixed regime for the real world. Moreover, For example, Malaysia was not a very wealthy country economically but the improvements of technology have helped their financial system in a quite extensive level.

Human Significance in Theology and the Natural Sciences: An Ecumenical Perspective with Reference to Pannenberg, Rahner, and Zizioulas by Christopher L. Fisher, Paperback

It has been reprinted in Ideas and Opinions, Crown Publishers, Inc. When considering the primary reasons for developing neurotheology as a field, we can consider four foundational goals for scholarship in this area.
