I choose The Window because in books at night people always look at the window and freak.

A Book of Luminous Things: An International Anthology of Poetry by Czesław Miłosz

Anyway, I am picking the one from this book: POETRY READING by Anna Swir 1909-1984 I'm curled into a ball like a dog that is cold. Chinese poetry is pretty much all contemplation, and unless you're looking exclusi This anthology was a serious underachiever — I found little excitement in it. Then again, I was confident that there was going to be some good stuff in here.

Two Poems from an Anthology of Radical Trans Poetics < Literary Hub

She was poetry critic of The New Yorker from 1978-1990, and was a member of the Pulitzer Prize Board from 1990-1999, often serving, before those years, on Pulitzer Prize juries for poetry. I highly recommend this book for anyone who is intrigued by the ability of good poems reaching the rarefied realm of consciousness: truth, beauty, sufferings and nobility. I adore poetry, in all it's forms, and even the old English poems that involved dense language and intricate rhyming schemes were still interesting and easy enough to understand.
