While this radiation is almost perfectly uniform, it shows very small fluctuations that may be caused by random difference in the local density of the original radiation or even in random quantum fluctuations. Experience is ultimately the product of human sensations, and sensations are just electrical and chemical interactions with human skin and sense organs.

36 ARGUMENTS FOR THE EXISTENCE OF GOD

They are the alternative actions and choices that are the basis for our. But the cultural information structures created by humans outside the body, in the form of external like this book, and the enormous collection of human artifacts, now rival the total biological information content.

And while the atoms, molecules, and cells of your body are important, many only last a few minutes and most are completely replaced in just a few years. Of course, naturalists do not regard the artificial as supernatural, but as natural, insofar as such things derive entirely from and are entirely dependent on the natural.
