So thoroughly and long Have you now known me, So real in faith and strong Have I now shown me, That nothing needs disguise Further in any wise, Or asks or justifies A guarded tongue. These images suggest various things — fire suggests rage, war, passion; ice suggests cold indifference and passivity — and can be interpreted in a number of ways, which lends this classic short poem about the end of the world an ambiguous, symbolic quality. The Collected Poems of John Masefield.

10 of the Best Poems about the Future

When false things are brought low, And swift things have grown slow, Feigning like froth shall go, Faith be for aye. May you softly go Before this place, and turn away your eyes, Nor seek to know the look of that which dies Importuning Life for life. The present moment is soon past, to be replaced by the future.
