Backfire

In the first edition of these Guidelines, grade three was included in Easy collections. Catalogers in libraries with juvenile collections are encouraged to consider implementing the LC standard to all PreK—12, or ages newborn through eighteen, if their collections include materials for teens at all levels. For example, the license may require attribution to the original author or it may forbid commercial uses.

NOTE: The Bluebook states that if the name of the database is unclear from its identifier, include the name parenthetically at the end of the citation. Each section contains a variety of resources, including articles, videos, webcasts, tip sheets, and recommended websites. Suitable for all types of libraries that collect nonprint materials, including academic, community, special, and private, this reference is essential reading for all librarians dealing with nonprint materials; library school instructors and administrators; media center specialists; information scientists; bibliographers; catalogers; and graduate students in library science.

Local Implementation Adopting this standard does not require libraries or catalogers to use records created by LC or to accept all elements of records available online or through commercial vendors. Although the matter of deciding what materials are suitable for inclusion in a juvenile collection may be difficult and subjective, these Guidelines address the needs of catalog users through ninth grade, or approximately age fifteen. Information about system requirements MARC field 538, System details note should be provided for videorecordings, electronic resources and some sound recordings.

Varying forms of titles are recorded in MARC field 246 with the first indicator set to 1 or 3 so these titles will be indexed and retrievable in a title search. Note, however, that the AC list customarily substitutes common names of animals and plants for scientific ones in the LC standard list.
