Research on Yucun Fu Hua

In the first decades of the twentieth century, southern Manchuria was a temporal-spatial frontier zone where Confucianism, Fengtian localism, Chinese nationalism, and Japanese colonial cultural influence encountered and intermingled with each other. The competition among the various forms of modern nationalism did not dominate the Manchurian intelligentsia at that time of uncertainty and transformation.

Research on Yucun Fu Hua

Reconstructing the lives and thoughts of Yuan Jinkai 1871-1947 and Zhao Xinbo 1887-1951 , two prominent local Fengtian intellectuals who chose to collaborate with the Japanese in 1931, I argue that intellectual collaboration in early Manchukuo was not just a result of vested interest and moral failure, but also a product of the frontier cultural space in which the local intellectuals operated in the late Qing and Republican years. Instead, such nationalisms were also co-existing and competing with many other cultural systems, local and imported.
