Assaha Kuwait Review

The food of the Middle East is, like the region itself, a complex network of interweaving cultures.

Qasr Al Muwaiji

Qasr al Muwaiji is an impressive structure that has watched over the oasis for around 100 years. For the accompanying dessert to wrap up our meal the station had a minimal choice of fresh fruits, um ali which was a tad bit sweet, honey drenched pastries, caramel, puddings and cheesecake.

Jawharat Al Kuwait Co. W.L.L.

Four varieties of eggs were freshly prepared and served. Lebanese cuisine is counted as a Mediterranean cuisine that is a hybrid of local, Ottoman, the areas of Palestine, Lebanon, Jordan and Syria, Persian and other cuisines from cultures that influenced the area through the centuries. Its base ingredients include olive oil, garlic, onions, lots of greens, veggies and grains and of course a variety of seafood and meats! Situated by the Gulf road in Bneid Al-Ghar, the Assaha is conspicuous.

Qasr Al Muwaiji

You can read the same menu — of tabbouleh and fattoush and hummus — from one country to the next, but in each it is subtly, sometimes vastly, different. Combined with the excellent ambiance, good food and great service, this place is definitely worth the visit.
