Zusammenfassung

In accounting for the reported similarities and differences between the two continents, I identify the contributing circumstances in the examined societies at large as well as in the characteristics of the scholarly environment in which the research in question is conducted. After 50 years of research and two major research programmes on migration in Switzerland — the NRP 39 Migration and Intercultural Relations and the NCCR on the move — this special issue reflects on the knowledge production in this important domain of sociology, mainly in Switzerland.
