

Why the North won the civil war - essays

Collier Macmillan - Why Did The North Won The Civil War Essay

Why did the South lose the American Civil War?

The Civil War, which began in 1861, came to an end on 13th May 1865 with a victory for the North. This however had not always been the case, as the South were victorious in many of the earlier battles of the war such as First Bull Run and they appeared at first to have strong military leadership. While it has been argued that the South's defeat was due to poor strategy within the military and the appointment of weak generals, many people also believe that there are other reasons for the South not winning the war. These include political instability, foreign support, the supply of the army and war economies.

Firstly, geography was in fact more advantageous for the South as they had a larger land mass than the North, with mountains and rivers which made battle easier for the people who knew the area, and harder for people who did not. The South also had a strong coastline, which made it difficult for the Union to invade. However, the North was far more industrialised and wealthier than the South as well as having experience building railways and these factors outweighed their disadvantage due to the geography of where the battle was being fought. Geographical factors were both useful and extremely adaptable to both sides at some point. For example, the dense forests and swamps of North Virginia favoured the defence, whilst in the West the great rivers were able to be used as supply routes for the Union, so it is unlikely that they played a major role in the winning or loss of the war.

Finally, the supply and the morale of the war played a major role in which side was to win the war. Two million men from the North fought in the war compared with just 900,000 in the South. At first this was not a problem, but as the war went on for much longer than was first expected rising numbers of casualties began to affect the Southern war effort. The North was able to use black soldiers from free northern states, the Border States and from newly liberated Southern areas.

Description: -

-Why the North won the civil war - essays

-Why the North won the civil war - essays

Notes: Originally published: Baton Rouge: Louisiana State University Press, 1960.

This edition was published in 1962

Filesize: 50.18 MB

Tags: #Why #the #North #Won #the #Civil #War #essays

How did the North win the Civil War but the South won reconstruction?

Compared to the South, The North had more factories available for production of war supplies and larger amounts of land for growing crops. The South secedes and demands equality and rights but has the complete opposite opinion when it comes to their slaves.

Why The North Won The Civil War

Grant III, the grandson of Union General and later President U. Although the population against slavery was less than those for slavery, the North had economic, political, and social tactics. This war freed over four million slaves and gave black men the freedom that they deserved.

Why Did The North Won The Civil War Essay

Focusing on the political, military, economic, social, and diplomatic reasons behind the Union victory, this collection presents the most complete picture of this key aspect of Civil War studies. The north was well developed in the industry.

public-docs.talentcoach.ir: Customer reviews: Why the North Won the Civil War

The advantages showed what strategies they used during the war in order to win battles.

(Solved) : It Has Been Stated That While The North Won The Civil War The South Won Reconstr . . .

The author makes a good case that the Confederacy lacked the central organizational skill, and misused its limited resources, but to say this was attributed to their founding principle, but again great insight from a different angle.

Why did the North won the Civil War essay? ★ public-docs.talentcoach.ir

Essay on Why The North Won the Civil War

Because of all this, if the South had won, the taxation and trade would have plummeted. These reasons were not based on the good of humanity, but rather on self-gain. What problems did the North face after the Civil War? In 1840 the total value of goods manufactured in the United States.

Related Books

- Rodzianko - an Orthodox journey from Revolution to millenium, 1917-1988
- Islam in South Asia - a short history
- Jewish resistance to the Holocaust
- Marie Brazeau - femme en Nouvelle-France
- Mary Shelleys Frankenstein