Transportation Research Part A: Policy and Practice

In 2000 the company obtained a contract to establish the Child Support Information Center, which responds to inquiries about the status of particular child support cases. Policy implementation outcomes depend partly on the will and capacity of implementers to act in accordance with the original policy design. Early paternity establishment became an essential aspect of rapidly initiating court-ordered child support for children of unwed mothers, in order to deter dependence on welfare.

Policy Problems

It is primarily concerned with comparing the amount of expected or known benefits produced from a particular policy choice with the expected or known costs associated with that choice. The growth of federal social programs mobilized the nonprofit sector, while in turn the nonprofit sector, through policy innovation and program implementation, helped legitimize the modern welfare state. Rhodes and Marsh 1995 note that a policy community can have several policy networks.

Policy Studies

While the government relied on think tanks for policy innovation, program review, and policy assessment, the federal government relied on nonprofit service providers to implement social programs.

Policy analysis

If we form a global partnership for science education and jointly develop a cohesive research program on lifelong learning, we have an unprecedented opportunity to collaboratively design and continuously improve teaching, instruction, and learning. Scholars in this tradition have studied public opinion formation, evaluation, and engagement.

Policy Studies

Networks are perceived as intermediating and opportunity structures through which ideas, individual and group preferences operate to influence policy outcomes. Similarly, a study of news coverage of a national referendum campaign in Denmark concerning the introduction of the euro studied the impact of news coverage of the campaign on public evaluations of political leaders.

Part A's aims and scope are complementary to Transportation Research Part B: Methodological, Part C: Emerging Technologies and Part D: Transport and Environment. The deductions are based on a BRT system's actual operations, assessed six months after its launch.
