Connecting the Edmund Rice movement

These three however wrote to the meeting stating their intention and readiness to concur with the majority of the Brethren. A meeting of all Brothers was scheduled to be held in Dublin, but, for reasons, not explained, the venue was changed to Thurles, meeting in August 1821. You will, I hope, have the goodness to send us with the other things, an outline of the manner in which your Novices are trained, the spiritual and other exercises which they perform whilst in the Novitiate, and the ceremonial for admitting them to the Habit and to the Vows.

Not all the bishops were in agreement. It is found in the earliest versions of the Rule he composed for the Brothers, going back to the daily regulations decided on in the first assembly of the Brothers in 1696. As this intended building will in future be the place where the Superior General for the time being and his Assistants are to reside, it is of the utmost importance that a proper plan be obtained.
