Laclau with Freud, or the Path Towards Psychoanalysis as General Ontology

Freud introduces the concept of overdetermination in his famous text The Interpretation of Dreams 1900. Bringing together ideas from Freudian, post-Freudian, Lacanian, and post-structuralist schools, Alcorn investigates the power of the text that underlies the reader response approach to literature in a strikingly new way. Freud proposes a hermeneutics without an ultimate foundation, which is based on a topology composed of two levels: the manifest content the text that the dreamer recalls when he wakes up, the main characteristic of which is brief, laconic and poor ; and the latent content sleep thinking or dream thinking, the main characteristic of which is rich, varied and extensive.

Jeffrey Berman
