California Department of Housing and Community Development

Partnerships are encouraged among local governments, public housing authorities, nonprofit housing developers, for-profit developers, and service providers in order to produce the greatest number of units for the most reasonable public investment, and to provide appropriate supportive services to residents with special needs. In other words, the 30 percent fall in the value of the underlying asset has led to as much as a 22 percent fall in the value of the mortgage itself.

Housing, Homelessness and Community Development Division

No new funding is available.

We need to lay the foundation for meaningful housing policy change

By shoring up our funding for public housing, addressing the financial needs of renters, and putting sustainability at the heart of our efforts, we can lay the foundation for meaningful change. HPD has several key functions as part of the national historic preservation program.

About Rethink Housing

The need for housing aid could not be more obvious. As such, considerations at multiple scales are considered, linking together the relationships of the built environment at the site, neighborhood, city, and regional scales.

Community Development/U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD)

Well after the smoke clears, however, the cost of wildfires lingers in lost recreational opportunities, impaired wildlife habitat, scarred landscapes, and after-effects like flooding and landslides. Housing and Homelessness primarily serves the public through our programs that award funds to community organizations and cities through contracts--making them the primary vehicle for our services.

We need to lay the foundation for meaningful housing policy change

Most identifiable by Yosemite National Park, the county is characterized by dense forests and sprawling chaparral. Some states are also stepping in to ensure that every community is providing fair housing opportunities for all—with zoning and land-use reforms at the center.
