Brimstone & Treacle (1982) directed by Richard Loncraine • Reviews, film + cast • Letterboxd

One thing that puzzles me about your work, though, is that it has been almost entirely for television. In the interim it was made into a film with a different cast. When they come to see what has happened to their daughter, they find that she has fully recovered from her disabilities, and though still confused, asks her father what has been happening to her.

A film variant steered by Richard Loncraine and featuring Denholm Elliott Bates , Joan Plowright Mrs. Brimstone and Treacle was initially composed by Potter as a TV play, charged, paid for and recorded in 1976 by the BBC, for their Play for Today opening. Though the cash is gone, Tom's credit card is still there.
