Nonlinear Multivariate Analysis / Edition 1 by Albert Gifi, Gifi

A nonlinear multivariate analysis, artificial autoassociative neural network AANN, was applied to bioprocess fault detection. Abstract Article info and citation First page References Abstract The Gifi system of analyzing categorical data through nonlinear varieties of classical multivariate analysis techniques is reviewed.

Nonlinear Multivariate Analysis

The output of the first unit of the trained AANN functioned effectively for the discrimination of the data in the abnormal cases from the data in the normal cases. The Proof of the Pudding.

Nonlinear Multivariate Analysis

A brief account of stability issues and areas of applications of the techniques is also given. Among techniques covered are correspondence analysis, principal components analysis, canonical correlation analysis and various ordination techniques.
