Cemeteries

If this is the case, please speak to the local authorities about buying a plot and to talk through their specific rules and regulations. We provide the burial service in the 32 cemeteries and churchyards within the city boundaries as well as cremation services at Linn and Daldowie Crematoria.

Home

Over the years, however, a sizeable body of records has accumulated here — the occasional published book, but usually handwritten, typed or computer-generated lists of inscriptions, sometimes accompanied by cemetery maps or plot plans and other miscellaneous records. They were demolished in 1967 to make way for the M8 and as part of a vast ring road project around the city to ease traffic congestion.

Bereavement Services

Perfectly manicured grass and wee tombstones set the scene for this doggy cemetery, which dates back to 1840. As I understand, land is purchased by some kind of consortium, some kind of group, you or I could buy a plot there for our loved one, and then if you set up a marker it would just be a piece of wood or stone—something that would fall back into nature eventually.

Scotland, Glasgow & Lanarkshire Death & Burial Index

We send our old people off to homes and hospitals to die; we only go to the cemetery for funerals and then avoid them. Eggener spoke with The Atlantic about what drew him to these morbid locales, and how the design of cemeteries has reflected America's feelings about death.

Cemeteries and Burial Grounds

Visiting information St Kentigerns Cemetery is part of a complex of several cemeteries north of Glasgow City Centre. Built between the years 1688 and 1691, is a congregation of the Church of Scotland. I'm in the process right now of writing my first will, and I've included language that I want a natural burial, in Oregon, where I'm from.
