Wandering young gentlewoman, or, The cat

While 17th century broadside ballads is the main focus of this index, some few ballads in The Pepys, Roxburghe and Crawford collections are of the 16th century, or are reissues of 16th century ballads, and a number of ballads in the Roxburghe and Crawford collections are of the 18th century. And I suppose the verie same rules that teach the one, may also serve to teach the other.

Passage of time marked

Heigh ho, shepheards God is he. And this believe I is good custome, which the Romanes, the Neapolitans, the Lumbards, and the rest are as apt to receive, as the Tuskanes.
