

Providing support at home for children and young people who have complex health needs

John Wiley & Sons - Psychological, emotional and behavioural difficulties

Description: -

- Professional-Family Relations
- Nurse-Patient Relations
- Chronic Disease
- Child
- Adolescent
- Home Care Services
- Young adults with disabilities -- Home care
- Children with disabilities -- Home care
- Chronically ill children -- Home care
- Providing support at home for children and young people who have complex health needs
- Providing support at home for children and young people who have complex health needs

Notes: Includes bibliographical references (p. [185]-197) and index.
This edition was published in 2008

Filesize: 68.78 MB

Tags: #Supporting #children #and #young #people

NHS England » A new dawn for children's health and wellbeing

We have fifteen care houses, nine located in our Paisley campus and six within the community.

Children and young people's services

To meet these ambitions, local authorities should provide early and intensive support to the family using multi-disciplinary teams. She is the recipient of several extra-curricular leadership awards, a Literary Award in Health Services Evaluation, Co-Investigator on over 7.

Getting it right for looked after children and young people strategy

A better understanding of each other's roles and what each can offer, along with a shared approach to problem solving and improvement, is needed. The study took a detailed look at one discharge planning service. Knowing what needs to change and what forms best practice is not enough.

Children with complex needs: Perspectives of professionals from Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander agencies, non

The Scottish Government believes all our looked after children should have this.

Children and families at risk due to living circumstances

Young people wanted help to understand when they were ready to leave and time to speak to people they trusted about what comes next. Over the period of this strategy we will work with other corporate parents to look at how support and services can be developed to meet the mental health and wellbeing needs of looked after children.

Children and young people with learning disabilities

This in turn supports faster and more effective permanence planning for the child. Independence in adulthood Many young people who have disabilities live independent lives, while others may always need significant care. We also need to understand and provide the support and services that will make a difference to these children and young people.

Related Books

- North-eastern frontier of India - structural imperatives and aspects of change
- History of Tartu University, 1632-1982
- Some theoretical aspects of attitudes and perception
- Pearl
- Checklist of printed materials relating to French-Canadian literature, 1763-1968. - Liste de référen