High Seas Airspace

Warships on the high seas have complete immunity from the jurisdiction of any State other than the flag State. After careful study of these replies, it drew up a final report in which it incorporated some of the points made, and grouped together all the rules it adopted concerning the high seas, the territorial sea, the continental shelf, the contiguous zone and the conservation of the living resources of the sea. All States shall cooperate with the competent international organizations in taking measures for the prevention of pollution of the seas or air space above, resulting from any activities with radioactive materials or other harmful agents.

. But at the UNCLOS-III, claims wider than 12 miles did not find favour and the 12 miles rule was accepted by the Conference, which may be considered the present customary international law position. Further, the chapter argues the need for mutual accommodation on the part of the freedom of fishing and conservation in the high seas.

The Convention on the High Seas

In the case of any conflict or contradiction between the texts or their interpretations, the text of the Agreement is to prevail.
