U.S. Relations With Australia

Under the Agreement Australia and the USA share responsibility for paying pensions to people who would otherwise not be entitled because they do not have enough residence in Australia or enough 'quarters' of coverage in the USA. This also applies to pensions granted without the assistance of the Agreement. What kinds of jobs were heading out of the country, to where, and what kinds of jobs were replacing those lost? Originally designed to help children whose fathers had died, AFDC evolved into the main source of regular income for millions of poor American families.
