Tom Hopkinson

The girl who was reading a book all on her own beneath a sunshade, pretending she didn't care, but inside was terrified of spending the rest of her life alone. She was rather sad that whenever she tried to look at him full on, the presence disappeared, but then she realised that she could talk to him using her intuition, and so they began having long conversations about all kinds of things.

The Andes of Martin Chambi

Next day, when Savin awoke, he found Ahab in tears at his side. The man was terrified, but he tore off a branch and made to attack the animal.

Claribel Alegria

I didn't ask you to re-bury the gold bars because I'm going to move them to a place only I will know about. But, however hard she tried, she could not work out what that solution might be. It was only when she returned to her room, this time confident that she would sleep soundly, that she looked at the note: the stranger was asking her to meet him in the place where they had first met.
