CARS: BENTLEY

A Centenary celebration To celebrate 100 years of Bentley, a version of the Winged B was created exclusively for cars built during the Centenary year. Bentley's factory in Crewe will carry out final assembly.

CARS: BENTLEY

Barnato received around £42,000 in return for his shares in Bentley Motors, having bought a sizeable stake in Rolls-Royce not long before Bentley Motors was liquidated. His MBE a British Honour , however, was awarded, not for his automotive engineering, but for developing reliable aero engines during the first world war, which undoubtedly saved a huge number of lives at a time when more pilots were lost through engine failure than by enemy action.

The author at least has the tact to place the two men facing outward, away from each other, and this rather sets the theme of the book. Napier, maker of many fine pre-war cars and cash-rich despite the recession, tabled a generous offer, but just one rubber stamp away from a deal, Rolls-Royce, luxury car and aero engine makers, topped the Napier bid.

CARS: BENTLEY

The options list for your Bentley is quite eye-opening, with five-figure accessories

Special editions of the Flying B mascot have been offered by Bentley's Mulliner division, for limited edition models, including a dark tint version and even including a gold Flying B. Perhaps it will not be seen again.

Bentley Motors

More than 5,000 were sold in five years, almost as many Bentleys as were made in the entire 20-year pre-war period.
