Distrust toward neo-liberal doctrines that seem to be most powerful ideological tools and prime-movers of free market, and the conduct of transnational companies and corporations today, becomes stronger as these operating forces threaten to destroy national economies and sovereignties. It must start with the American people reevaluating their dangerous delusion of America being the greatest country in the world.

Need for a National Identity

An awakening of national consciousness is frequently ascribed to and is associated with , and was part of the dissolution of, and the. American citizens have decided that they have had enough and decided to stand up for their country and fight for their independence. It would be an oversimplification or even a gross mistake to conclude that present-day Lithuanians have lost their feeling of their national identity.
