Parliamentary standing committees give MHA more time to frame CAA rules

During sitting days the Assembly debates can be viewed live through select Live. On 7 November 1996, while debate on the Bill continued in the House of Representatives, the Senate Selection of Bills Committee recommended and the Senate agreed that the provisions of the Bill be referred to the Senate Legal and Constitutional Legislation Committee for inquiry. A member may table only one oral question on behalf of another for each minister each day.

Membership is determined by the selection committee, and is established for each bill. According to the Manual of Parliamentary Procedure, rules have to be framed within six months from the date on which the statute came into force. ### Hansard

Royal assent - the monarch's assent to make the bill an act of parliament.

Hansard

The result is then announced in the House. This Act came into effect on 1 July 1996.

In Committees

Parliamentary counsel - are responsible for drafting government bills and amendments to bills, and advising government departments on all aspects of parliamentary procedure. The committees of the House are small working groups of MPs.
