Some grew out of earlier commands as the service expanded in size and hierarchy for example, the V Air Support Command became the in April 1942 , and higher echelons such as USSTAF in Europe and became necessary to control the whole. In late 1943, the P-51B Mustang was introduced to the by the USAAF. In 1980, he became the innovative commander of III Corps.

14th Air Force in World War II

GIs fired their machine guns and automatic rifles until the barrels turned red hot, but the Japanese, eerily visible under the light of flares, surged forward.

HyperWar: U.S. Army Air Force in World War II

To secure the high ground overlooking Maffin Bay, Krueger ordered an overland advance toward Sarmi village about eighteen miles west of the beachhead. The reconnaissance-in-force passed north and south of Eighteenth Army's main assembly areas which were from two to four miles inland from the coast.

Their effort and their survival as an effective fighting force during the winter of 1944-45 set the scene for the breakthrough and rapid advances which were to take place in the Po Valley in the spring of 1945. The following were the most numerous types in the USAAF inventory, or those that specifically saw combat.

Eighth Air Force

The 8th lost 31 bombers, the 15th lost 33. The Confederate Army recruited a handful of black Soldiers in March 1865, but they were still being organized when the war ended, and they never saw action. Thompson set up his machine gun in the path of the onslaught and swept the enemy with withering fire, pinning them down momentarily thus permitting the remainder of his platoon to withdraw to a more tenable position.

WWII Army Air Forces Collection

Nearly 40,000 women served in the WAACs and WACs as AAF personnel, more than 1,000 as WASPs , and 6,500 as in the Army Air Forces, including 500 flight nurses.

History

Female USAAF uniforms were either the uniform of the ANC or that of the WAAC with appropriate USAAF branch insignia. The next day, over 900 bombers and 700 fighters of Eighth Air Force hit more aircraft factories in the area.
