Bush said recently that there is an opportunity to change the world which should be seized, and that Iraq was a threat to the region and therefore it was a threat to the United States! As we continue to see the ever-growing effects of climate change, it is important to note that although many countries of Africa and the African diaspora are not the largest consumers or producers of greenhouse gases and carbon emissions, they are the most adversely effected by the ramifications of climate change. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 2002. No American president has been willing to tackle the problem of our national security state, although some presidents have done better than others.
