Course on Selection of Remedy, Potency, Repetition(Posology)

Low potencies: These include 6X and sometimes 30X. This aphorism shows one when the wait and watch method is most appropriate. PAGE 52 As to the interval between repetition of prescriptions this may vary from a few minutes to a year or more and is entirely dependent on the general amelioration of the patient.

Potency

Hahnemann's only negative statement in the 6 th Organon about the C potency is concerns medicines made on machines that gave overly forceful succussions. Unfortunately, too many homoeopaths have not taken the time to review these historical realities and have not bothered to test the system.

[Homoeopathic Online Education, David Little] Misunderstanding Hahnemann's Legacy

Experienced homoeopaths are reporting cures of very chronic diseases with the LM potency where the high C potencies failed.

This method was called by Dr. Samuel is the Father but his child is still growing and has yet to attain its full maturity.

Homeopathy Remedy Selection

Some remedies act best when given in high potencies like Polycrests and nosodes. That is why he used his advanced methods with the low and high potency centesimal remedies as well as the LM potency.

Selection of potency and repetition of dose

This statement seems to be connected to the theme that if the 6th Organon and Hahnemann's Paris cases were published it would have thwarted the development of the centesimal remedies. A second dose may not be required if improvement has commenced however if by chance the recovery has not begun a second dose of the same medicine may be taken in the same way, in water, over a series of days, diluting as the days proceed. People who have underlying health issues may also be susceptible.

This is why he introduced the medicinal solution and split-dose in 1837. The dose of medicine was decided based on individual susceptibility.

Tutorial 4

In acute cases, repeat every 2 to 6 hours. When there is a striking response to the first dose there is nothing else to do for the moment. On analysis, it was found that 25 cases were treated with constitutional prescription and 25 based on sector prescription.
