Kant: Rational Psychology

Three Dialogues between Hylas and Philonous, Jonathan Dancy ed. As he himself states, hypothetical reason finds itself driven to a consideration of the ground, the whole, or the infinite, i. It must be kept in mind that Kant has not claimed to demonstrate the existence of a transcendent free will or a transcendent necessary being: Kant denies the possibility of knowledge of things in themselves.

Kant's Transcendental Idealism: An Interpretation and Defense, Revised and Enlarged Edition // Reviews // Notre Dame Philosophical Reviews // University of Notre Dame

If in the corner of my field of consciousness featured distinct momentary flashes, every second, indicating the date and time to the second, I would be able to determine the temporal order of my past experiences by their means cf. The claim that space and time are not features of things in themselves is used to resolve the First and Second Antinomies. At the same time, by virtue of my capacity for apperception, I can have a kind of propositional grasp of the apperceiving subject; Kant affirms that in apperception, I am conscious that I exist as subject B157.

Virtues of Freedom: Selected Essays on Kant // Reviews // Notre Dame Philosophical Reviews // University of Notre Dame

In the Groundwork, Kant suggests that the presupposition that we are free follows as a consequence of the fact that we have practical reason and that we think of ourselves as practical agents.

Kant's 'Doctrine of Right': A Commentary

Thus, where the will to choose principles, goodwill, chose the right principles. How the Second Postulate rules out the existence of the apparent spatial objects of dreams and hallucinations is spelled out in the third note to the Refutation of Idealism: Note 3.

Kant and Sartre: Existentialism and Critical Philosophy

This dignity comes from the fact that humans are rational agents, capable of taking their own decisions independently. Theory of Experience The Transcendental Deduction showed that it is necessary for us to make use of the categories in experience, but also that we are justified in making use of them. For Kant, we are not slaves to our impulses constant, there is something beyond the passion which we own consciousness, and this is the true self.
