Letters Addressed from London to Sir Joseph Williamson While Plenipotentiary at the Congress of Cologne in the Years 1673 and 1674 by Joseph Williamson

On Saturday about 11 at night the King, the Duke, and most of the Lords of the Cabinet Councell, went down to the Fleet to take their final resolutions there, though in Towne they will needs have it that the King's goeing downe is to reconcile the Prince and the French Vice Admirall, who they say refuses to saile under the command of the Prince, and though here are many people who are ready to invent, and at least to encrease such reports as these, yet there is now not any one but thinks that something has happened to give occasion for this generall disc. Upon Friday last, in the evening, the Dutchess landed att Dover, where the Bishop of Oxford declared the marriage between his Royall Highnesse and her in the same forme as was done att the King's marriage.
