Inappropriate transfer of technology

Prior to the mid-1800s, companies operating overseas engaged largely in wholesale operations; they did not run factories, operate mines, or own agriculture.

CSC

Another emerging pattern of international trade is the so-called intra-industry trade by which expression we denote that part of trade that results in the imports and exports — for the same country — of products belonging to the same industrial category.

Inappropriate transfer of technology

Providing a special focus on knowledge leadership, this chapter addresses the
