The Senate will also form special committees to review particular issues or events of interest. Any restriction imposed on this right must be determined by law.

The Special Joint Committee of the Senate and of the House of Commons on the Constitution of Canada, 28th Parl, 4th Sess, Final Report (29 May 1972)

We propose such decentralization for reasons of functionalism and flexibility, and to meet the regional differences which became obvious to us in the course of our hearings. But before doing this, the Constitution must express the purpose of Canadians in having become and resolving to remain associated together in a single country, and it must express as far as this is possible in a constitution what kind of country Canadians want, what values they cherish, and what objectives they seek.
