Mary Tudor: The Truth About Henry VIII's Sister

She was particularly fond of Elizabeth, seen as the only one to be able to stop the child from crying in Season 2. Despite her hatred of Anne Boleyn, Mary did not show any initial for her half-sister, Elizabeth who was mothered by Anne , whom she warmly cared for as an infant.

Mary Tudor: The Truth About Henry VIII's Sister

More than a decade younger than Mary, Philip, also a Catholic, came to England to meet her for the first time in 1554 and the pair tied the knot two days later at Winchester Castle. During this season, with the feud between the Lutheran and Catholic factions of Court at its peak, Mary becomes frustrated with the Lutheran factions, and laments her wishes that the country might be healed to Catholic faith, at whatever cost, even bloodshed.
