The Measurement and Monitoring of Safety

Purpose To explore patient safety culture among Romanian staff, using the U. Discussion In this descriptive cross-sectional study we explored Patient Safety Culture PSC in Romania, using for the first time in this country the AHRQ HSOPSC. Given the substantial benefit of an ambulatory follow-up visit, managed care has focused efforts on encouraging patients to attend at least one such visit, and with good effect—patients are more likely to attend after-care appointments when they are closely managed than when providers are relied on to encourage attendance.

Measuring patient safety

This reduces their risk of harm to self or others; decreases the likelihood of readmission to inpatient care; and increases their safety. The percentage of positive responses was low for two areas frequency of events reported andnon-punitive response to errors and ofserious concern for one area staffing. ICM is also perceived more favorably by recipients than standard case management.
